 - Summarizes in writing information related to the presentation, including a discussion of the current controversy, current government (federal or provincial) policy on this issue, community response, proposed solution, and ethical dilemmas or implications.
- N: Course Content: The following global ideas guide the design and delivery of this course:
 - 1. Recognition and appreciation of diversity is fundamental for the development of a strong community. All individuals are respected and viewed with equal status because of the belief that the community is strengthened by the gifts, talents and abilities of all of its citizens.
 - 2. Cooperation and collaboration provide a firm base for personal and social change.
 - 3. People who nurture commitment and connectedness in their personal lives, on the job and in the community maintain their enthusiasm, creativity and energy.
 - 4. Believing in personal power and understanding its source is the basis of change.
 - 5. Practitioners who actively keep abreast of, reflect on, and apply trends in their field of practice and who can articulate and apply a personalized model of professional practice are able to sustain and renew themselves in their work.
 - 6. Practitioners can positively affect their field of practice by understanding systems and how power operates in organizations and communities.
 - 7. Professional practice requires critical thinking and the application of ethical principles in making decisions and taking action.
 - 8. A practitioner must know how to effectively use and refer others to a myriad of informal and formal community resources.
 - 9. Human services are a secondary medium for helping people. The primary medium of support in our community is social networks. Understanding the limitations of professional intervention improves professional accountability.
