

EFFECTIVE: SEPTEMBER 2004 CURRICULUM GUIDELINES

A.	Division:	Instruction	E	ffective Date:		September 2004
B.	Department / Program Area:	Faculty of Child, Family and Community Studies Community Social Service Worker	R	evision		New Course	X
			R D	Revision, Section(s) evised: ate of Previous Revision
C:	CSSW 2363	D: Mental Hea		ate of Current Revision		25 August 2003 E: 3
	Subject & Cour	rse No. Descrip	tive T	itle	Seme	ester Credits
F:	Calendar Description: This course explores the values, attitudes, and beliefs of the worker and the knowledge and skills required to support and enhance wellness with individuals in the community who have mental illness. Students will have opportunities to explore the nature of mental illness through the eyes of individuals who have experienced mental health problems. Students will learn about the causes, symptoms and treatment of mental illness. Community resources and an overview of mental health services will be discussed.
G:	Allocation of Contact Hours to Type of Instruction / Learning Settings			Course Prerequisites CSSW 1122	:
	Primary Methods of Instructional Delivery and/or Learning Settings: Lecture/Practice Number of Contact Hours: (per week / semester for each descriptor) 60 Hours		I:	Course Corequisites: None
			J:	Course for which this None	s Course	e is a Prerequisite
	Number of Weeks per Semester: Flexible delivery ranging over 6 to 15 weeks			Maximum Class Size 30	e:
L:	Malaspina University College; Bachelor of Professional Arts in Human Services degree program at Athabasca University; and Bachelor of Community Rehabilitation degree program at the University of Calgary.
		edit Non-Transfer edit Transfer:
	SEE BC TRANSFER GUIDE FOR TRANSFER DETAILS (www.bccat.bc.ca)

А.	Know	vledge of Mental Health/Illness
	1.	demonstrate an understanding of past and present social attitudes towards mental illness and an ability to challenge popular but incorrect beliefs regarding mental illness
	2.	demonstrate an understanding of issues related to assessing the presence/absence of
	•	mental health/illness
	3.	describe techniques for working with people with mental disorders including
	4.	responding to clients who are off their medication, delusional, or hallucinating demonstrate an understanding of the types of mental illness (medical, psychologica
	4.	social/environmental) and an appreciation for the resultant treatment approaches
		(biological, psychotherapeutic, preventative)
	5.	demonstrate an understanding of the DSM-IV diagnostic system and the benefits/liabilities of labeling persons with specific diagnoses
	6.	demonstrate an understanding of the key characteristics of some types of mental illness, (i.e., child and youth disorders, anxiety disorders, post traumatic stress disorder, eating disorders, bipolar disorder, depression, personality disorders, schizophrenia); an appreciation for predictive risk factors; an understanding for a disorder's impact on the individual, family and society; and knowledge of past and
	7.	current treatment approaches
	/.	demonstrate understanding of the cultural variables associated with mental disorders
	8.	demonstrate knowledge of the predictors of suicide risk and prevention strategies
	9.	demonstrate an awareness of the major issues related to deinstitutionalisation (i.e. homelessness, poverty and violence) and an appreciation for the benefits and liabilities of commonly proposed solutions
	10.	demonstrate awareness of major medications for specific disorders and their side effects (e.g., anti-anxiety, anti-psychotic, anti-depressant and anti-manic
-		medications)
В.		vledge of the Mental Health System
	1.	demonstrate knowledge of the system of mental health services in Canada and B.C including forensic services, hospitals, emergency/crisis services, services or person with mental handicaps, community based psychosocial rehabilitation programs, clubhouses, etc.
	2.	demonstrate knowledge of the roles of the various professionals (e.g., psychiatrists family physicians, psychologists, social workers, and social service workers, nurse occupational therapists, counsellors, rehabilitation workers) who work in the mental health system
	3.	demonstrate an awareness of housing options available for persons who have
	4	serious mental illness and an appreciation for gaps in the available resources
	4.	demonstrate a working knowledge of relevant mental health legislation in British Columbia and an understanding of legal issues which could impact future legislative changes
	5.	demonstrate a basic appreciation for the current consumer and family empowerment initiative and their impact on service delivery
	6.	demonstrate a basic appreciation for current and future directions in mental heal policy and planning issues

 N: Course Content: The following global ideas guide the design and delivery of this course: Values, attitudes and beliefs influence our interactions with people with mental disorders. Individuals with mental disorders perceive the world in different ways and should be given the opportunity to report what their experiences mean to them. Communication skills are necessary to facilitate the telling of personal stories and to hear what the personal needs are perceived to be. Knowledge, although tentative and changing, assists in dispelling myths and changing attitudes. A basic understanding of current classifications and treatments for mental illness helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and avocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besigeed by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. While people's lives may be besigeed by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inhere
 Individuals with mental disorders perceive the world in different ways and should be given the opportunity to report what their experiences mean to them. Communication skills are necessary to facilitate the telling of personal stories and to hear what the personal needs are perceived to be. Knowledge, although tentative and changing, assists in dispelling myths and changing attitudes. A basic understanding of current classifications and treatments for mental illness helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resilicey that can be mobilized for change. Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evalu	N:
 the opportunity to report what their experiences mean to them. Communication skills are necessary to facilitate the telling of personal stories and to hear what the personal needs are perceived to be. Knowledge, although tentative and changing, assists in dispelling myths and changing attitudes. A basic understanding of current classifications and treatments for mental illness helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and change. Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment neccessary to facilitate the telling of personal stories and to hear what the personal needs are perceived to be. Knowledge, although tentative and changing, assists in dispelling myths and changing attitudes. A basic understanding of current classifications and treatments for mental illness helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. Wethods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources Prectice reports Self-evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment Rei dassessment and Recognitio		2.
 perceived to be. 3. Knowledge, although tentative and changing, assists in dispelling myths and changing attitudes. A basic understanding of current classifications and treatments for mental illness helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. 4. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. 5. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. 6. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition
 3. Knowledge, although tentative and changing, assists in dispelling myths and changing attitudes. A basic understanding of current classifications and treatments for mental illness helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. 4. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. 5. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. 6. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment attitudes. A basic understanding of current classifications and treatments for mental illness helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment helps to develop values and attitudes necessary for effective worker performance. 4. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. 5. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. 6. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment 		3.
 4. Wellness is a holistic, multidimensional concept. The mental health wellness level of an individual connected to that person's family and community. 5. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. 6. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment individual connected to that person's family and community. Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources T. Extbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment 		4
 Social networks promote wellness and are needed by those whose illness may separate them from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition 		4.
 from others. To support individuals with mental illnesses living in the community, the worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. 6. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports		- worker needs to help people access and use the resources available within a given community. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment 		5.
 community. 6. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment
 6. Enabling individuals, supporting their right to self-determination and assisting them to develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations.
 develop personal networks and linkages to access community resources, empowers individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment Recognition Record assessment Record assessment		6 individuals to take increasing initiative for themselves. 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besiged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. I. Practice reports Z. Self-evaluation J. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition 		0.
 7. Strategies established through conscious planning of personal support networks, professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition professional development and other means strengthen worker wellness and assist the worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition 		7 worker in continued effective performance and sustained job satisfaction. 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment and Recognition 		/•
 8. A basic knowledge of provincial Mental Health Services and their relationship to other health and social services will facilitate the worker being able to negotiate with and advocate for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment
P: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition		8.
for individuals needing their services. 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. 0: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition
 9. While people's lives may be besieged by debilitating problems and chaos, they also possess inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition inherent capacity and resiliency that can be mobilized for change. O: Methods of Instruction Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition		9.
Lecture, Practice, guest speakers, use of multimedia resources P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Textbooks of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition
 P: Textbooks and Materials to be Purchased by Students T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. Practice reports Self-evaluation Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition 	0:	Methods of	f Instruction
T.B.A. Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition		-
Q: Means of Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition	P:	Textbooks	and Materials to be Purchased by Students weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition		T.B.A.
weighting of evaluations. 1. Practice reports 2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition	Q:	Means of A	Assessment: This course will conform to Douglas College policy regarding the number and
2. Self-evaluation 3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition		weighting
3. Field assessment R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition
R: Prior Learning Assessment and Recognition		2.
This course is available for PLAR	R:
		This cours	se is available for PLAR

John Fox, Bob Shebib

Course Designer(s)

Education Council / Curriculum Committee Representative

Dean: Jan Lindsay

Registrar

© Douglas College. All Rights Reserved.