F:	Calendar Description: Frontiers of Thought is an introductory appreciation of the frontiers of thought in the areas of: People and their World (Sciences); People and their Society (Social Sciences); and People and their Minds (Humanities). Specialized disciplines contributing to our understanding of these areas are examined. Presentations are interdisciplinary and non-technical and assume no student acquaintance with the subject matter. This course is for those whose programs would not normally include these disciplines, as well as for those desiring a general survey course.
